

Great Death Rites

The Soul is everlasting, and every death is a new beginning!

As the Soul lives the physical body, it undergoes journey beyond death and into new incarnation. In the time between incarnations, the Soul has an opportunity to heal and “make decisions” for the next embodiment in the physical body. Dying peacefully and consciously is an important part of the healing process. Supporting individuals, families, and communities in the times of transition is sacred service for a shaman.

The Great Death Rites include several stages.

- Recapitulation or life review
- Seven Chakra Illumination
- Great Death Spiral

Supporting the dying and their loved ones to go through the process of recapitulation allows everyone to practice forgiveness and gratitude. As we help the dying to go through their life review, everyone has an opportunity to release old stories and step into Muna. They experience emotional release and lightness of being, becoming free from guilt, shame, and blame.

On the energetic level, we assist the dying by clearing their energetic bodies and energy centers through the process of seven chakra illumination. As they go through the process of recapitulation, we can clear the imprints of situations that still hold energetic investment. As the client remembers these situations, we can help them retrieve that energy that is still caught in time in those situations and bring them back to the client.

The final step in assisting the dying is disengaging their energy centers through the Great Death Spiral and sealing the energy centers to ease their passing.

Transition Pipe Ceremony finalizes the process and offers the dying guidance on their journey beyond the physical body.

The gift of surrogate death rites allows the shaman to offer Great Death Rites to Souls who have passed without assistance and help them find peace.
